Introduction

The Architectural Periodicals Index (API) is the published version of the British Architectural Library's (BAL) own periodicals subject index; as such it makes one of the world's greatest collections of architectural information accessible to architects, researchers, students, art and architectural historians, librarians and all those working in or interested in the built environment.

Designed as an up-to-date general, though selective, index to some 300 of the world's architectural periodicals, it is published quarterly, the fourth issue constituting a cumulation of the year's contents.

It is produced at maximum speed, though delays in receipt of overseas periodicals will of course result in corresponding delay in the indexing of their contents in the API. A list of periodicals analysed, with year and issue follows this introduction.

Rd September 1984

Publication data

The API is published quarterly, with an annual cumulation, for the British Architectural Library by:

RIBA Publications Limited
Finsbury Mission
Moreland Street
London EC1V 8VB
Telephone 01-251 0791

Subscription rates

Full service: £38.00, post free (RIBA Members £33.00)
Cumulative editions only: £33.00, post free (RIBA Members £29.00)

Copies of volumes 2–6 of the API are still available, and details and prices may be obtained from the publisher.

The Architectural Periodicals Index can also be obtained on microform or magnetic tape, and a Card Reproduction Service is available as well.

The British Architectural Library welcomes suggestions on format, content and periodicals indexed in the API; these should be addressed to the Managing Librarian.

History

The API in its present form dates from August 1972. It is, however, the latest stage in the development of an information service which began as the RIBA Library Review of Periodicals in the 11 November 1933 issue of the RIBA Journal. From November 1946 to July 1972 it appeared as a separate quarterly publication, the RIBA Library Bulletin. From 1965 to 1972 the quarterly issues were cumulated annually as the RIBA Annual Review of Periodical Articles. In 1971 a microfilm edition of the Library's own card index to periodicals covering the period 1956–1970 was published. This can be purchased from:

World Microfilms Publications
62 Queen's Grove
London W8 6ER

In 1972 the method of production was changed to photo-offset lithography from letterpress to overcome the increasing delays encountered with the latter form of production, and to accommodate the increased number of periodicals indexed. In order to make the index essentially an up-to-date and current information tool, the cards in the BAL's own periodical index were photographed and published quarterly as the Architectural Periodicals Index. The first volume covered the period August 1972 to December 1973 and subsequent volumes covered calendar years.

During 1977 the architectural firm of Hutton & Rostron developed a mechanised system for indexing in the BAL and from the beginning of 1978 this system has been employed to produced the API. This speeds production and provides a higher standard of printing. Computerisation, moreover, has made various innovations possible, such as a Names Index in every issue and a Topographical Index in the cumulative issue.

Subject scope

The fields covered in the API include architecture and allied arts, constructional technology, design and environmental studies, landscape, planning, and relevant research. In all these fields articles on both current practice and historical aspects are included. In planning the stress is on actual schemes, conservation and urban history rather than on pure theory and research, or its sociological aspects. In construction and building technology proprietary product information and highly technical material written for other disciplines such as civil or mechanical engineering, surveying etc. are not indexed. Nor in professional practice are statistics or case law covered. In areas such as interiors, decoration, painting, sculpture, furniture, landscaping and the like, the criterion is normally the involvement of, or the direct significance of the work to, the architect.

Every attempt is made to cover architecture world-wide and periodicals from some 45 countries are at present indexed. However, a greater emphasis is placed on architecture and design in Great Britain and all projects and designs in Great Britain, executed or unexecuted, as well as British work abroad are indexed when significant information, i.e. more than mere notes, is supplied.

As to form, book reviews, letters and news items are generally omitted but obituaries of architects (though not simply notices of death) are included.

Arrangement and format

The API is an alphabetically arranged subject index whose headings are derived from the BAL List of Periodicals Subject Headings. Where a specific design is described it is entered under the appropriate building type, and the heading is extended to incorporate the country, the particular locality and the name of the building or project if known. But where the work of an architect, planner etc. is described in general, the article is indexed under the subject heading for the profession in question, i.e. Architects, Town Planners, etc.; again, in these entries, the geographical area where the practice of the architect etc. is registered is incorporated in the heading, e.g. Architects: France. Names of firms are entered according to the Anglo-American Cataloguing Rules e.g. Architects: US: John Portman & Associates, and not as Portman, John & Associates, and are alphabetized accordingly. National architecture is subdivided by date e.g. French Architecture: 1890–1910, or, French Architecture: Paris: 1848–1914.

The BAL List of Periodicals Subject Headings provides the necessary guide to location of subjects in the API and it will be published during 1980. Commercial constraints prevent the inclusion of cross references in the API.

The Index entry itself is constructed as follows: title of the article (foreign language titles are translated into English with a note indicating the original language); the name of the architect, project architect, partner in charge etc, if given; the author of the article if given; the types of illustration (plans, details, sections, elevations, sketches, axonometric views, diagrams, tables, graphs, models, photos and portraits) together with references to bibliographies and cost analyses. If the subject content of the article is not clear from the title, a note in clarification is added. The presence of an English summary is noted and if the article is part of a series a series statement is included.

The entry concludes with the title of the periodical, its volume and issue number, dates and the inclusive pagination to the article.

Theatres: France: Paris: Theatre de la Gaîté Lyrique
T0003 Project for the renovation of the Théâtre de la Gaîté Lyrique; archt for renovation Jean Nouvel.
Article in French by Gérard Négréanu; plans secns, sketches.
Built in 1861 by Jacques Hittorff.
English summary, p 69
CREE, no 45, 1976 Dec, pp 64–69

Indexes

Each issue of the API carries a Names Index giving the names of authors of articles, architects and architectural firms, designers and planners of projects, organisations, and other names relevant to the subject scope. At present names of buildings are not included in the Names Index.

The cumulative (i.e. 4th) issue of the API will carry a topographical index giving, as applicable, country, region, city/town, building name or part of town, in that order.

Photocopying service

Every periodical indexed in the API is held by the British Architectural Library from which photocopies of articles indexed can be obtained. To comply with current copyright regulations a Copyright Declaration must be signed. Please note that copyright regulations forbid a complete issue of any periodical to be copied. Each request must include the title of the article, the name and number of the periodical in which it appears, the pagination indicated as well as the chronological index number (e.g. B–0048) and the issue number and year of the API from which you are quoting. To prevent delays in fulfilling photocopying orders it is suggested that the following declaration be quoted and signed:

'Please supply me with one copy of each of the following items. I will use the copy/copies for the purpose of research and private study only, and no library has previously supplied me with a copy/copies of this/these items.' Signature ...

Photocopies can be made as either A4 or B4 sizes, and the BAL will select the appropriate size for each order. Do not remit any money in advance; an invoice including postage will be sent. Photocopying prices are:

A4: £0·12 per page (RIBA members £0·10 per page)
B4: £0·14 per page (RIBA members £0·12 per page)

Photocopy orders should be addressed to the British Architectural Library.

Books

The quarterly British Architectural Library Book Accessions List is inserted in each issue of the API. This list also includes newly published books which have been presented for review in the RIBA Journal. Reviews appear in the RIBAJ as space permits.

List of periodicals indexed

Criteria for deciding to index a periodical include: the presence of an appreciable number of articles of reasonable length on the built form; the presence of adequate illustrative material where relevant, especially in foreign language material. Periodicals of peripheral value to the subject scope and which are indexed in the British Humanities Index and the British Technology Index, are excluded.

Country of origin of periodicals appears in brackets after the name of the periodical.

List of subject headings used in this issue

The list below contains all subject headings used in this issue. It is not feasible to include a list of all cross-references – which will be published separately in 1979 – but meanwhile the user will be able to locate sought headings by scanning this list. General material on the architecture of a specific country will be found under adjectival entries, e.g. French Architecture, Spanish Architecture, etc., but to locate all material on a specific country each subject heading must be checked to see whether geographic subdivision occurs, e.g. Theatres: GB. A full topographical index will appear in the cumulative issue.
